

GERMAN REDS DECLARE GOVERNMENT VICTORY IS BUT AN ARMED TRUCE

Ebert Government Gains Upper Hand at Nearly All Points—Effort to Form Cabinet Continues—Communists Declare They Will Prepare for Further Struggle.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin, March 24—(10 p. m.)—The great Vulcan shipbuilding yards at Stettin have been captured from the Bolsheviks by government troops. It was officially announced today. The government forces took a quantity of armored cars. After sharp fighting order has been restored at Hamburg and Hanover.

Military leaders declared that no further danger is anticipated from the Reds in Berlin. General Von Lelov-Vorbeck, one of the best known officers in the German army, who was recently welcomed as a military hero after he had returned from Africa, has been dismissed by the ministry of defense.

Prince Henry, brother of the ex-Kaiser, who was arrested near Kiel, has been released, the government announcing it had found he had had no connection with the Von Kapp military coup.

Warrants have been issued for all of the well known leaders in the Von Kapp coup. While the government announces that General Von Luttwitz and Admiral Von Trotha have been arrested, it was learned today that they are not yet in custody. The government is evidently hoping to appease the workers by announcements of wholesale arrests.

Disquieting reports are coming from Pomerania.

Sporadic labor troubles are still occurring around this city. Two engineers who attempted to leave Berlin with locomotives were shot dead at the throats.

Efforts to form a coalition cabinet are still under way.

It is generally conceded now that Herr Bauer will continue as chancellor.

Although quiet has been restored here, the Communists are still in a threatening mood. Herr Dornau, one of the leaders, in a speech said: "This is not the conclusion, but an interruption for the purpose of preparing for the next battle. It does not mean the end of war, but only a pause."

The Communist newspaper Freiheit, reiterates the demand for a government composed exclusively of workers. Commenting upon the successful intervention of labor, this newspaper said:

"Thanks to the determined unity of the proletariat, Van Kapp and Von Luttwitz were defeated in a few days. The proletariat are fully conscious of their tremendous power. When the general strike is wielded with solidarity, the proletariat becomes the ruling power in the state. The destiny of Germany lies in the hands of the workers."

The anti-Bolshevik leaders accuse German banks of having a secret agreement with the Communist chiefs to further an economic agreement between Germany and Russia.

Under-secretaries and other officials who refused to take orders from Von Kapp are receiving their reward. All have received letters from President Ebert and notification of a substantial raise in pay.

Investigation of utility strikes shows the use of volunteer help, including many school boys, did much harm. At the power stations, gas works and water plant, the school boys let their curiosity run away with them and their investigations into the delicate mechanism of the machinery put a great deal of it out of order. So great was the damage at the gas plant that, while the strike is ended, it was said, supply of gas would not be normal until the end of the week.

SPRING DISPLAY OPENED BY KINGSTON'S RETAIL MERCHANTS

Anyone Who Disregards the Invitation to "Be on Hand" For the Exhibit is Surely Missing Something Worth While—Goods and Prices Speak for Themselves in Most Convincing Manner.

Kingston merchants opened their annual spring display this morning and report an excellent business and great interest on the part of the public. While no special stress has been laid on the matter of window display, many of the window decorations are fully up to those shown during Dress Up Week a year ago. The "Be on Hand" slogan of last year was adopted again this year and for several days the advertising columns of The Freeman have been spattered with the emblem:

A tour of the shopping district of the city today reveals that it certainly is worth while to "Be on Hand," whether you buy or not, to see the new line of spring goods that is on display. A walk along the streets and an inspection of the stores will prove to anyone that Kingston needs no "Shop at Home" campaign to induce people to do their buying here. The goods and prices are the only argument needed.

GAS HOUSE MEN OUT ON STRIKE

About 25 Employees of Ponckhockie Plant Quit Work—They Asked For a $1 Day More, and Claim Demand Was Met, But Later Company Notified Men Wages Would Return to Old Scale.

About twenty-five employees of the Kingston Gas and Electric Company at the gas plant in Ponckhockie went on strike Wednesday afternoon, and are still out. The men are striking for an increase in wages of a dollar a day. About a week ago the men asked for a raise in pay of that amount, and claim that the company granted the request, but that Wednesday they were notified that the company was unable to pay the new wage scale, and that the wages would return to the old scale. The men then struck.

Judging from the advertisements carried in the local papers today, the gas company is planning to fill the strikers' places with other men at the old wage scale. While work at the gas house was crippled today, the company had some new men working in the places of the strikers.

The gas plant in Ponckhockie is the one that supplies Kingston with gas for lighting and heating purposes.

OPEN MEETING

Of Federation of Women's Clubs Saturday Afternoon.

On Saturday afternoon there will be an open meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs held in the chapel of the First Reformed Dutch Church. The business session is called by the president, Mrs. Frank Thompson, for 2:15 o'clock sharp. It is necessary to call the meeting 15 minutes earlier as Miss Horton will address the women of the city in the interest of Y. W. C. A.; there will be considerable important business to be transacted and it is desirable that the business session be closed by 3 o'clock so that the Monday Club may then take over the meeting. They will provide the speaker for the afternoon, the Rev. Father Mabry, of Holy Cross Church, who will speak on "The Development of Democracy in France." The men as well as the women of Kingston will be cordially welcomed to this meeting on Saturday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

ABOUT THE FOLKS.

Mrs. Arthur Dolson, who has been seriously ill for the past few weeks, is improving.

Miss Evelyn Bishop is seriously ill with nervous breakdown at her home, 72 Crown street.

Mrs. E. Van Hovenberg, who has been spending the winter in New Jersey at the metropolis, has returned to her home, 143 Prospect street.

Mrs. Alice Whitbeck, who has been spending the winter at her daughter's in Syracuse, is now staying with her nephew, Arthur Dolson, on Broadway.

William J. Turck, president of the Kingston Trust Company, Mrs. Turck and daughter, Lucella Turck, returned Tuesday from Miami, Florida, where they spent two months.

Miss Edna Horton, who has been confined in the Newark City Hospital for quite some time, is again able to leave her bed. She expects to leave for her home in Albany in a few weeks.

Edward I. Atwater of 11 Main street, left today for New Haven, Conn., on a business trip to look after his property interests. He is registered at the Hotel Bishop. Mr. Atwater during the recent term of supreme court was called to serve as an extra taxman and made an excellent jurymen, being complimented by the attorneys.

Tomorrow evening Archdeacon Post will be the special afternoon preacher at St. John's Episcopal Church on Wall street. The public as well as the parishioners of the church are cordially invited to this service.

From Terry & Tench Company, One of Biggest Bridge Building Concerns in the Country—This Bid is $20,000 Below the Engineers' Estimate, So the Bridge is Now Up to Commissioner Greene and the Supervisors.

Albany, March 25—Only one bid for the completion of the state highway bridge over Rondout creek was received by the State Highway Department at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the hour at which bids were to be opened. The bid was that of Terry & Tench Company of New York city for $637,124.20. The Terry & Tench Company is one of the best known and largest bridge building concerns in the country.

As this bid is $20,000 under the engineers' estimate, the contract for building the bridge will undoubtedly be awarded to the Terry & Tench Company by Commissioner Greene.

The matter of awarding the contract for completing the bridge is now up to Commissioner Greene, who has pledged himself to "build the bridge or bust a lung," and the Ulster County Board of Supervisors to take immediate steps to procure the right of way in order that the contract may be made.

SYRACUSE 'PHONE RATE HEARING

P. S. C. Will Hear That City's Complaint on Basis of Local Conditions—Will Receive Evidence Which Company Claims Will Show Rates Should be Based on State-Wide Earnings.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, March 25.—The public service commission, second district, ruled yesterday that it would consider the complaint of the city of Syracuse against the telephone rates established December 1, 1919, upon the basis of the segregated local area of Syracuse. At the same time, in its ruling the commission stated that it would receive evidence from the telephone company to support the company's contention that the rates in Syracuse and other places should be based upon the state-wide earnings of the company rather than upon the earnings in any segregated area.

Chairman Hill, of the commission, said that the commission desired to secure all possible light upon the subject of rates and their establishment either on a segregated or a state-wide basis.

Under yesterday's ruling the Syracuse case is to be made a test of the segregation theory of rate making. Evidence was offered by the Telephone Company experts showing that in 1919 the company earned a net revenue in the Syracuse local area of $74,000 or less than one per cent upon the property actually in use in the public service. The earnings under the new rates during the month of January 1920, if taken for the year, would show a net return of $105,000 or about two and one-half per cent upon the company's investment.

The evidence of such a return in a prosperous community came as a real surprise and brought up the question of what the segregation theory will mean if applied to all prosperous communities. If rates would have to be further increased to provide a reasonable return in Syracuse, similar increases in smaller places might well result in prohibitive rates or a lowered quality of service by necessity.

The state-wide principle, however, according to the Telephone Company's contention, spreads the costs so that all communities receive high grade service at reasonable rates.

OTHER CITIES

Than New York May be Included in Rent Bill.

Albany, N. Y., March 25.—Unstate legislators today began a drive to have cities outside of New York included in the program of bills directed against rent profiteering, which was put in final form today for enactment by the legislature.

Car Growing Population.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Boice of No. 186 Ten Brock avenue are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a nine pound boy, Frederick Russell Boice, on March 20.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald of No. 1 Russell street are receiving congratulations over the birth of a son at the Kingston City Hospital.

Enter Home For Aged.

I have entered the Home for the Aged. I want to thank all my relatives and friends for helping me to secure such a good home.

MRS. ANNA DOD GLASS.

My husband, James F. Dod, has purchased the residence of Mrs. Peter Dod at No. 17 Albany street.

RIVER ICE IS STILL HOLDING

The ferry transport, which made its first trips of the season on Wednesday, was keeping close to schedule time today and encountered no difficulty in making her regular trips. The ferry channel is the only open water to be seen on the Hudson river in this vicinity, and the ice is holding firm both above and below her track.

Under the influence of the warm sun of the last few days the ice jam in the Hudson river near Van Wie's Point broke shortly before noon Wednesday and crumpled the ice sheet against which it was resting, the whole mass floating to a point opposite Cedar Hill, where early that afternoon it was still holding. Van Wie's Point is about four miles below Albany.

Between Kingston and Poughkeepsie the ice still holds and runs in thickness from a foot to 15 inches. The Rondout creek is practically clear of ice.

The tugs Hart and Rob are still being held awaiting orders to proceed up the river in case of necessity.

SOCIETY NOTES.

A miscellaneous shower by the Misses Nellie Pernet and Minnie Yallum in honor of Miss Esther Siller was given Sunday, March 21. It was largely attended and Miss Siller was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts. After spending a pleasant evening the guests departed with best wishes for Miss Siller's future.

A very pleasant surprise was given at the home of Mrs. Fred Balzer of 112 Second avenue, in honor of her mother, Mrs. Martha E. Schroeder of Highland, the occasion being her 81st birthday. She received a number of useful gifts and a bountiful dinner was served by Mrs. Balzer. Those who were present were Mrs. John Hermann, Mrs. Wm. Raehle, Mrs. Jesse LeWitt, Mrs. LeGrand Hotaling, Mrs. Virgil Kelly, Mrs. Fred Sudholer, Mrs. Martha Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hines, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Balzer and son, Fred. All departed wishing Mrs. Schroeder many more birthdays.

Shower for Miss Craig. A curious miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Charles B. Craig, 22 Green street, on Wednesday evening for Miss Florence Craig, whose engagement to Alexander Wilkinson of Brooklyn was announced. Miss Craig was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. During the evening music was enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served. Those present were the Misses Violet Reynolds, Helen Rose, Georgiana Claffin, Lilian Wedel, Nellie Van Stomberg, Mildred Harmon, Emily Bartosh, Fern Turner, Emma DeGraff, Alice Todd, Mabel Carter, Evelyn Hogan, Ruth Hogan, Gladys Wesley, Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Hays, Mrs. Haynes, Mrs. Studler, Mrs. Craig, Mrs. DeGraff, Mrs. Claffin and Mrs. Frank Ascher.

DELAWARE HOPELESS

General View of Suffragists—Bill's Fate Decided Soon.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Dover, Del., March 25.—It was generally conceded today that only a political miracle can bring about ratification of the federal suffrage amendment in Delaware and thus enable millions of women to vote for president this year.

Suffragists, supported by United States Senators Ball of Delaware, McKellar of Tennessee, and Sterling of South Dakota, still maintain that "there is a fighting chance" but they readily admit that it is a slim one at best.

Both sides got a chance today to air their opinions. Hearings were given in a joint session. Temperate scenes were anticipated when the suffragists and anti's came face to face before the judiciary committee.

It is probable that the fate of the measure will be decided late today. Governor Townsend said that while the situation is critical, he believes the amendment will be ratified.

For Central American Republic.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Mexico City, Mex., March 25.—A movement for the union of all Central American countries into one republic is well under way. Numerous Central American citizens now in Mexico, including many political refugees from Guatemala, are preparing to address a petition to President Carranza to support the proposal. It was learned today. Refugees arriving here say that the movement is also gaining ground in Central America especially in Guatemala.

Cailloux Trial Resumed.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, March 25.—When the treason trial of former Premier Joseph P. Cailloux was renewed today there was a continuance of the secret session which began yesterday to consider M. Cailloux's alleged threat against the life of King Alfonso of Spain. After sitting in secret for more than an hour, the court was thrown open to the public and M. Cailloux's lawyers began calling witnesses for the defense.

May Abandon Jail.

The board of trustees of Walden is considering the abandonment of the "Haze Jail." At a meeting held Monday night the question was raised as to whether the village should continue the expense of the jail. The board is in receipt of a letter from the state commission of persons stating that the village could abolish the jail if it were so minded, there being nothing in the statutes to prevent such action. The matter will be brought up at the next meeting.

Three-the-Pin (Hike) Tomorrow

If you are bothered with a cold or fever threat or on your chest that will not go, or if you are slow to get back over the influenza, tomorrow will be the day to visit the clinic at the hotel house, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. It will cost nothing to have Dr. Stanley W. Wenzel, specialist, give you an examination. There will be serum in charge.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Eleven Converts Secured in Revival Meeting Series.

The second of the series of special meetings being conducted at the Salvation Army hall on North Front street was more successful than the first one held on Tuesday evening in point of interest aroused. Tuesday night six people were at the altar and last night five more gave their hearts to God. The hall was filled very comfortably last night. Evangelist Elliot spoke on "More Steam" and proved conclusively that the man or woman with Christ in their life is the one that possessed aggressiveness, force and zeal and he said that as cold shivers went over him when he happened upon the cold body of a corpse in an escapee of his younger days so did the real possessing Christian shiver when he came in contact with a merely professing Christian who at heart was a backslider.

Tonight the envoy will speak on "Lord, Lord." The band will be on hand and a wonderful meeting is looked for. The meeting that was held yesterday at Jacobson's shirt factory was attended by about 75 girls and a good and interesting time was enjoyed by them. Captain and Mrs. Young and Cadet Wilbur Young sang and played, having with them beside their cornet and trombone a folding organ which aided greatly in the singing. Envoys Elliot gave a short talk. Today the meeting will be at Fessenden's shirt factory at the noon hour.

Phoenicia Bus Passes Deer.

The Phoenicia auto bus, after being held up for several weeks being unable to get through the snow-drifted mountain roads, is again running to and from this city. It leaves this city at 8 a. m. and on its return trip leaves uptown at 5 p. m. On Monday the auto bus will begin running through to Shandaken. Wednesday Mr. Winne, the auto bus owner, saw eight deer near the Trosser Hollow bridge and saw three this morning.

The Epidemic Is Now Over.

According to the records of the board of health, the epidemic has run its course in Kingston, and no cases have been reported in some time. Since the first of the year there were 255 cases reported in Kingston. The measles epidemic is also waning, but a few scattered cases being reported. The majority of the cases now reported are in Ponckhockie.

Time Quoted to Aid Cause.

The Prince Jima Quartet has been secured to sing three selections at the afternoon services Sunday in the First Reformed Dutch Church. Besides the three selections by the quartet they will assist the choir in the usual Sunday afternoon musical program.

Save Spring Cakes.

A sign of spring which is more positive than the appearance of the first of blue birds has appeared, in the removal of the storm doors from the front entrance to the Stags' Head Hotel and the court house.

ACCUSES WIFE OF MAKING LOVE

James H. Cullen, Head of Transportation Company, Files Letter As Answer To Separation Suit—Alimony Refused.

In answer to his wife's suit for a separation, before Supreme Court Justice Finch in New York city, James H. Cullen, president of the Cullen Transportation Company of New York city, submitted a letter which he claimed was written by his wife to "Ole C. Boccoli, an impecunious clerk." The letter was addressed to Boccoli in New York and was post marked "Schenectady, Oct. 21, 1918."

Mrs. Cullen, who resides at 450 Riverside drive, in an affidavit submitted to Justice Finch, says she is at a loss to understand why her husband suddenly left their home on March 13 last.

Cullen, however, claims that the family discord arose over his wife's alleged friendship for Boccoli.

Justice Finch denied Mrs. Cullen's claim for alimony on the ground that she is wealthy in her own name, having been left a fortune by her former husband, the late N. J. Vedder. Justice Finch, however, directed Cullen to pay $250 a month to Mrs. Cullen for the support of their daughter, Dorothy, seven, and son, Preston, six.

MC LAUGHLIN FOR SUPT OF BANKS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., March 25.—Governor Smith today sent to the senate the nomination of George V. McLaughlin of New York to be state superintendent of banks to succeed George I. Skinner whose term expires April 12. The salary is $10,000 a year. McLaughlin is at present deputy superintendent of banks and has served in the department for ten years.

Frank Ganett, Newspaper Owner, Married To Caroline Warner.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rochester, N. Y., March 25.—The marriage of Miss Caroline Warner, daughter of the late judge of the court of appeals William E. and Mrs. Warner, to Frank Ganett, was solemnized at noon today at the home of the bride's mother here by the Rev. Dr. Paul Moore Strayer, pastor of Third Presbyterian Church. The bride is a graduate of Rosemary Hall and was prominent in war relief work. Mr. Ganett is editor and one of the owners of the Rochester Times-Union, owner of the Hibiscus Journal-News and vice president and past owner of the Elmira Star-Gazette. He is a former president of the New York Press Association and is an alumnus of Cornell.

Disastrous Boston Fire.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Boston, March 25.—A six-story office building was destroyed in a spectacular waterfront fire today. The building, at the corner of Atlantic avenue and Oliver street, was ruined at a loss estimated at $150,000. Fire boats poured with land apparatus called by four alarms in fighting the fire. Two firemen were injured by falling walls.

DELAY IN PAYING TAX IS COSTLY

"It must be understood clearly," said State Comptroller Travis today in referring to the expiration of the extended filing period for state income tax returns ending March 31st, "that the longer the delay by taxpayers in filing returns the greater amount of interest charged to them."

"No doubt," he continued, "thousands throughout the state who saw military or naval service or worked for a government controlled corporation during 1919, are holding up their returns until the law is amended granting them full exemptions. Expecting such action, our auditors are segregating returns so affected to the end that necessary refund may be quickly made. Many others, however, would have money in their pockets if they sat down and sent in the return immediately."

Mr. Travis added, that he hoped there would be reduced to the minimum the number of returns on which the penalty charges would have to be assessed, but pointed out that he was bound to enforce the provisions of the law in this respect against those failing to make returns or filing fraudulent returns. Actual receipts so far have totaled $23,000,000, with tax payments ranging from one cent to one million dollars. Among those who paid the minimum levy was a woman engaged in literary work, who stepped up to the Albany district office counter at the same time that a driver of a milk wagon paid a tax of eighteen dollars.

The funeral took place at the St. Remy Church on Wednesday at 12 o'clock. Interment in the St. Remy Cemetery.

Character Revolution.
Not merely speeches prepared, or those delivered, serious preached, but what a man says and how he says it to his neighbors friend, to his acquaintances or companion, to his father or mother, his wife or child across the breakfast table; this is what counts. It reveals him off his guard and in a moment, but as he would wish to be, not even as he would wish to be thought to be, but as he actually is, and it marks him with an indelible mark.—Forbes.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 26, 1920.

At last Mexican Federal troops have rescued an American captured by bandits and held for ransom. If they had done this in the earlier cases, there might have been no later ones.

If horses ever snicker—and the term "horse laugh" points that way—there must have been considerable equine merriment when the royal stables in Berlin were turned into a public library.

Boone, Iowa, contributes the "most married" woman. It seems she has tripped to the altar 13 times, that all her husbands are still living, and that she married some of them two or three times.

According to the spokesman for the French, they do not ask cancellation of their debts but "only time to breathe" and recover their strength. They deserve and America will no doubt grant all the time they need.

Hetty Green and Bertha Krapp are both eclipsed by Mme. Suzuki of Japan, said to be the richest woman in the world, the fortune which she has industriously piled up being estimated at $150,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Mrs. Reginald DeKoven says she has heard through a "medium" that spirits who left their bodies on this planet are still attracted to it but that great numbers of other spirits "prefer the Pleiades, Hebrides and Hesperides." When did the Hebrides islands on the west coast of Scotland and the fabled Green garden of the Hesperides become constellations?

The reported stand taken by Bavaria, Saxony, Wurtemberg and Baden in favor of the Ebert government against the Junker-tinged movement of the north shows that these southern States have not forgotten their forcible annexation to military Prussia. If they could get the upper hand a better Germany might result.

THE WISE GIBBS.

The mere title of Philip Gibbs' new war book, "Now It Can Be Told," suggests the question as to whether it is useful or desirable to tell it even though the telling, now that peace is restored, involves no military or other danger to the Allied cause. About the only conceivably useful service that can be performed by plunging the reader up to his neck in rivers of blood, mixing him in ghastly filth, and dragging him shrieking through acres of decaying fragments of poor mortal flesh, is that perhaps only in this way can the misguided project of bringing home the American dead be checked through the conviction forced upon bereaved families that in innumerable cases there are only fragments to bring and that perhaps in only a minority of cases is identification certain. Of course, there is the further but negative service of confirming extreme pacifists—of whom Mr. Gibbs appears to be one—in the belief that the hell of war should be obscured at every cost, including loss of national independence and virtual slavery; but pacifists of this type do not need to sit at such a ghastly feast in order to be strengthened in their scribbled view.

If this distinguished British correspondent's tone were different he might indeed help to prove to a more and more indifferent public that a strong combination of nations to prevent cruel and devastating wars is one of the world's greatest needs. That apparently Mr. Gibbs puts no more trust in heads of nations than in commanders of armies. He arraigns and blames right and left, denouncing them in unflinching and for the unflinching, inevitable and inescapable. As one enthusiastic reviewer puts it: "Gibbs spurs to us"—adding: "His book will prove him among the immortals, for there never was and never will be again a book like it."—a commendation of service coverage, even snuffing, foot hammer, and even debauched by the numbers of chemistry and physics. Though the promised immortality may be doubtful, it is pretty certain that if a reviewer should fall from heaven to Mr. Gibbs' grave, he would give it a very severe lecture for thus offending.

Doubtless he saw more than some other correspondents; possibly he was permitted to step a few yards nearer the fighting line than some of his fellows, although if "a glance from Gibbs' often 'crumpled' and asinine general like tissue paper," as one of his admirers relates, it is difficult to understand his progress. Even granting his superior opportunities for observation, however, who is Philip Gibbs to sit like a Daniel in judgment upon Poch, Haig and Pershing, to question their methods and reveal their supposed errors, to give his admirers the impression of his conviction that "there was hardly a general of genius on the battlefields of Europe?" Merely to pile horrors sky high was not enough for Gibbs. According to the reviewer already quoted, "the incompetent general, the indifferent staff, the plans that went wrong, the battles uselessly fought, the men uselessly thrown away, the wrong tactics, all these stand arraigned in his book," for "Gibbs hates war and has sworn to strip it of its gaudy raiment." We may well tremble to think of what would have come to pass if the all-knowing but shrinking Gibbs had been in command, for doubtless he would have handed Europe, including England, to the Kaiser after the first battle rather than let the armies of the Allies suffer what they had to suffer in order to win.

MANY TREASURES IN SENATE HOUSE

Doubtless the people of Kingston, as a whole, know less about what is in the Senate House than do the people of Ulster county, and they in turn are unquestionably less conversant with the historic treasures stored there than are the visitors who come to Kingston, especially during the auto touring season. As that season will soon be in full force it might be well for most of us to make ourselves conversant with this historic spot and its curios, not only in order that we may have this knowledge for our own, but also that we may be capable of giving intelligent information to our guests and the travellers who visit Kingston.

Those responsible for the Senate House were indeed wise in their choice of Miss Westbrook as the one to put in charge, for her knowledge of the history of the city and county; her love for the traditions of the place; her interest in securing valuable additions to the collection of historic valuables for the place; and her skill in arranging the rooms, all make her an ideal hostess for this Mecca of tourists.

Who but Miss Westbrook would have thought of arranging one of the upstairs chambers, and a very pleasant one, with the gifts from Miss Mary Van Leuven of this city, in such a way that the room has come to be known as the "Miss Van Leuven room." These gifts include a four post bedstead, with a most unusual shaped canopy, gracefully curved instead of rectangular as is usually seen. The bed curtains and valance are made of what was known as "block printed," cloth, the design in red of birds of paradise and fruits and leaves being block printed upon the white hand woven cloth in the same manner that we used recently to do wood block printing on paper. Then there is a huge "winged" chair, upholstered with more of the block printed cloth, this time the design being in a deep, clear blue, on white ground the design being known as the "Pineapple pattern." And finally there is an "hour glass table," also with covering of the "pineapple print" cloth. In addition to these large pieces which in a way fill the room there are a number of smaller pieces some of which were given by others than Miss Van Leuven. There are two little Dutch rockers, two foot warmers and a bed warmer which seem to belong to the room. Then there is a cap basket, numerous elaborate band boxes, a curious old table and little cradle. On the bed is what is known as an "Album quilt," given by Miss Westbrook herself. It was presented to her grandfather the Rev. C. D. Westbrook, while he had a pastorate in Fishkill and on the pieces of the quilt are to be found written in indelible ink, the names of his parishioners. This quilt must be well over a hundred years old.

There is one other treasure, kept in this room, into which one may look but not enter for safe keeping, and that is the little old trunk in which the artist, Vanderlyn, took his paint-box abroad.

There is another interesting bed chamber, furnished, on the second floor as well as the "spinning room," and the "Civil War room," the arrangement of which has been Miss Westbrook's idea. There is also one large room, which has no definite plan out in which there are many interesting things.

And then there is the attic and its possibilities. It has always seemed more than a pity that the wonderful Vanderlyn panorama, still in boxes at the Senate House could not be arranged so it could be seen, for it would prove a most unusual attraction to all lovers of art and of antiques. Miss Westbrook has a perfectly feasible plan for the placing on exhibit of this panorama in the attic, but is deterred from carrying out her plan by lack of finances, as there would be some cost in connection with the mounting of the canvases.

Many more of us know the downstairs rooms at the Senate House, yet how many of us realize that the reception hall is arranged in old English fashion with the fireplaces hung to the beams, and portraits on the side walls? Again, how many of us appreciate the fact that the "Senate Room," has become the repository of a great many very valuable and certainly exceedingly interesting documents of historic worth? Is, in fact, a document room.

During the cold of the past winter, Miss Westbrook stated that the delightful old Dutch kitchen, now so richly equipped from many a Kingston attic, was always warm and cozy when the curious old wood stove, with its thick soap-stone top was filled with burning wood. Tradition says that pea cakes could be baked upon the smooth soap-stone top, and why not?

Among the more recent and notable gifts received at the Senate House are two of Mrs. Dillon's paintings, "The Three Jacques," painted in the Louvre, and a chrysanthemum piece, given by Mrs. T. V. R. Brown, Mrs. Dillon's sister.

As "Miss Van Leuven's room" was arranged late in the fall, many Kingstonians have not seen it at all, and it might prove to be an excellent idea for many of us to acquaint ourselves with the full contents of this historic building, now before the flush of summer tourists becomes so heavy that Miss Westbrook has her hands more than full with them, as she does every summer.

FREEMAN WANT ADS. BRING RESULTS

ENGLAND.

Highland, March 25.—Miss Katherine Schantz, who is in school in Elmira, arrived home Thursday to spend the Easter vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Schantz, on Vineyard avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Maynard are spending some time this week in New York city, combining shopping and pleasure.

Cluett Schantz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schantz, is in Vassar Hospital for an operation on his head. He has suffered intense pain in head, ears and eyes for some time and friends hope this may be a speedy cure.

Arthur Schamerhorn was a week-end guest at his home on Main street.

Miss Belle Brinkerhoff, Rev. and Mrs. F. A. Coons, Mrs. James Nickerson, Mrs. Thomas Coutant, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schantz and son, Cluett, Mrs. W. Constable, Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. Lorin Schantz, Mrs. R. H. Decker and Mrs. Enlist Wood were spring shoppers in Poughkeepsie Monday.

Dr. Rivenburgh, who has been ill for several days, is now around.

Richard Plant, who has been ill for over two weeks, is now improving.

S. T. Jennings, of the high school faculty, has sent in his resignation. He leaves for an up-state position at an increase of $300 in salary per year. He will be missed, as he was universally liked.

Howard E. Wilcox has been fixing up his store to make it more up to date and more attractive to the public. New electric lights and show cases and fine line of goods.

The W. F. Missionary Society was most delightfully entertained last Wednesday by Mrs. B. A. Reynolds.

A fine program and refreshments ended the pleasure of the afternoon. Mrs. Chester Atkins and Mrs. Josiah Schoonmaker were in Poughkeepsie for the day Tuesday.

Mrs. Angella Mott was removed to the hospital in Poughkeepsie Monday. She has been ill for several weeks.

Mrs. W. E. Wilcox is in Danbury, Conn., visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bickert.

The Music Study Club and a few guests held forth at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wilcox Tuesday afternoon. The program was interesting and everyone present certainly enjoyed a musical afternoon. The social at the close of the program was a pleasure also and very dainty and delicious refreshments were served.

Albert Percival and sister of New York city spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Terpening.

Mrs. Amelia Elmendorf of Clintondale has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell on Maple avenue.

The lecture and pictures descriptive of "Ben Hur" in the M. E. Church last Friday evening were grand. Rev. Douglass is a fine lecturer and very instructive, and enjoyed by a large audience. Refreshments, consisting of cake, coffee and cocoa were served. This put in the league's treasury a nice sum of money, which it was in need of.

Thursday evening last about 30 young people gave Anna and Esther Terpening a surprise party and they had some jolly time. They just enjoyed dancing to their heart's content and they had quantities of good things to eat, and just 2 o'clock in the morning we thought we would go home and get a few winks of sleep for some of us had to work next day, and we about fell asleep at our tasks, yet we dreamed of the grand time at the Terpenings.

Many of the high school teachers will spend their Easter vacation at their homes out of town.

T. Edward DuBois of New York city was a week end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theron DuBois.

The D. of A. held their meeting Wednesday evening, March 17, after which a St. Patrick social was enjoyed. There was a large attendance. Mrs. Mabel Everett carried off the first prize as Irish woman. Extra Nickerson, first prize, to Irishman, and booky prize to Green Sheoley.

Mr. Nickerson gave a vocal selection. Mrs. Suzanne Decker and Mr. Jennings, of the high school faculty, gave readings. There were all appreciated. Games and dancing were indulged in by a number of the members and bountiful refreshments served. In order with the Patrick affair, which was carried out along the line of green very nicely, every one paid 17 cents admission and 17 cents fine if they did not have on their person some greens. This netted a nice sum for the treasury.

The Order of the Eastern Star held their regular meeting Tuesday evening. Good attendance and social hour with refreshments at the close of the work.

Adonal Lodge, F. & A. M., held a meeting Monday evening and conferred degrees upon a few candidates. They are gaining in number at each session.

Mrs. Alice Pressler and Mrs. Benjamin Gedney were in Poughkeepsie Monday on business.

Do not forget the supper in the M. E. Church this Friday from 5.30 to 8.30 p. m. Be sure and eat the good things that have been provided.

WOODSTOCK.

Woodstock, March 25.—There will be an entertainment given in M. E. Hall next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Erastus Osgood, a prominent entertainer will be present and this announcement alone ought to bring folks out in great numbers. Mr. Osgood has appeared before large audiences in New York, Philadelphia and Kingston. He is the only man on the program platform whose monologues and readings are original. He has given fine satisfaction wherever he has appeared and an evening of fine clean amusement is in store for those who come. Miss Mary Lecker and Mrs. Griffin Herrick have graciously consented to give one or two piano songs, so all in all this promises to be a fine evening for Woodstock community. Come early so as to get a good seat. Tickets will be sold by some of the girls of the M. E. Sunday school and may be secured at the Willard Shultz celebrated his 35th birthday on Saturday, March 20, with a surprise party. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. C. Eckert and family, Mr. and Mrs. M. Lapo, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wolven, Mr. and Mrs. B. Snyder. They left in the wee hours wishing him many happy birthdays and voting him "royal entertainer."

"Holy Week" will be observed in Woodstock in the Methodist Church by preaching services every evening except Saturday. It will be an exclusive Methodist undertaking, but the whole community regardless of church affiliation is invited. The subjects of the evenings will be "Meditations on the Words of the Cross," Monday, March 29, "The Word of Forgiveness," Tuesday, March 30, "The Word of Promise," Wednesday, March 31, "The Word of a Physical Agony," Thursday, April 1, "The Word of Spiritual Agony," Friday, April 2, "The Word of Triumph." On Tuesday the Rev. Mr. Sherman, pastor of the Lutheran Church, will preach. On Thursday, the Rev. Mr. Nichols, pastor of the Reformed Church, and on Friday the Rev. Mr. Denniston, pastor of the Saugerties M. E. Church. On that evening the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. It is hoped that this week of services will minister towards the deepening of this community's spiritual life.

On Easter Sunday the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered in the Lutheran Church and all the members are earnestly urged to be present.

GRANITE.

Granite, March 24.—Mrs. George Lawrence of East Wauarsing spent a few days last week with her mother, Mrs. Phoebe Slater.

Cyrus Schoonmaker has moved in the house of James Van Etten which was once the Simpson place.

Mrs. Mary Markle of Walden, formerly of this place, is visiting her old friends here, and expects to remain here until April 1.

A. B. Sheldon was in Accord Friday. Will Countryman expects to move soon in the house vacated by C. Schoonmaker.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Sheldon entertained friends from Ellenville Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Miles Decker and Mrs. Selah Sheldon called on Mrs. Emogene Slater Sunday afternoon.

Miss Gladys Sheldon of Vassar College is ill with measles.

The many friends of this place are glad to hear that James Van Etten, who underwent an operation at the Kingston City Hospital, is getting along nicely at this writing. We hope he will soon be able to be at his home in Kerhonkson.

Miss Mattie Simpson is ill. Mrs. Elizabeth Van Etten called on her sister, Mrs. J. Rose, who is ill.

Mrs. George Smith and son, Oscar, spent Thursday with friends in Accord.

Services will be held here by our pastor, Rev. S. Ardron Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock if nothing prevents.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Addis and son, John, of Manawaska, were guests of his brother, Will Addis, Sunday last.

Miss Sue Addis of Ellenville spent Sunday at her home here.

Adam Turner is spending some time in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sheldon were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hook Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Sheldon and Mr. and Mrs. Emory Turner attended the community sing at the Odd Fellows hall at Accord Monday.

Those who were Ellenville callers last week were Miss Dorothy Sheldon, Mrs. E. Van Etten and Mrs. Bertha Coddington.

Miss Della Slater who is spending the winter in Bermuda, expects to return home some time in April.

Mrs. Rosetta Decker entertained company at her home Sunday.

PLUTARCH.

Plutarch, March 24.—Miss Helen Bedell spent the week end with Poughkeepsie friends.

The stork visited the home of Mr. Mrs. Clifford McCormick on Wednesday last and left a daughter, named, Lela Miriam. Mother and child are doing well.

Mrs. Dennis Carroll was called to Clinton Corners, Dutchess county, on Monday on account of her father's illness.

About fifty attended a dance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin on Wednesday evening last. All report a fine time.

Arthur DeWitt and family have moved from their farm here to Otisville.

Fred Will was a business visitor in Poughkeepsie on Saturday.

Quite a number from here attended the indoor meet at the New Paltz Normal on Friday evening last.

Mrs. George Clark and son of Rhineburg spent a few days last week with Mrs. Daniel DeGraff.

William Schoonmaker has a position at Wallingford, Conn. He is much pleased with the place and people.

Fine Tailoring For

Men who are not satisfied with what does for others!

Men who are not satisfied with what does for others—it is for you that Kuppenheimer, Hickey-Freeman, United, Ford Policy Clothes are made!

If these wonderful institution of fine clothes-makers should go out of business tomorrow, other makers would supply the deficiency in volume.

But we question very much if any other houses ever could supply the inspiration to higher standards of workmanship which is Kuppenheimer's, Hickey-Freeman's, United, Ford Policy largest contribution to clothes.

Each season they create new standards of excellence, putting in the shade all that has gone before!

Each season, their efforts are looked for, as eagerly as the literary world waits for a new book by Wells, or flocks to see the latest play by Barrie.

They stand alone and isolated from competition by a reputation for great workmanship, which gets greater as each season rolls around, and which is at its greatest this present Spring.

Kuppenheimer, Hickey-Freeman, United, Ford Policy Clothes.

If you are not satisfied with what does for others—

If you belong to the exclusive circle of the hard-to-please—

If you want the beauties of hand-workmanship in the custom manner—

Kuppenheimer, Hickey-Freeman, United, Ford Policy Clothes are the solution and there is no if about it.

WEST SAUGERTIES.

West Saugerties, March 25.—Mrs. William Kelly and son have returned to their home in Saugerties, N. J., after a "week's" visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Schalk.

Mrs. Eva Boyce of Saugerties is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Tetter.

Henry Bach and mother spent a few days with the former's sisters in Tannersville.

Mrs. Hannah Carr and her grand-children, Margaret and Marion Reg-gers, spent a day with Mrs. Sara C. Rightmeyer last week.

The Ladies' Aid Society knitted a quilt for Mrs. Metzger last week at the home of Mrs. Orville Carr.

Thomas Fisher and wife spent Thursday of last week in Saugerties.

Willard Carr and his son attended the St. Patrick's dance in Catskill.

Mr. Fred Cole and nephew, Herbert Cole, were visitors at the home of George Davis of Catskill last Friday. Her sister, Mrs. Davis, has been ill with pleurisy.

Richard O'Brien and family of Lewisville were Sunday guests of his parents.

Mr. Holtz and wife have left for New York city.

Peter Housel and family have moved from Platte Cove into the home of S. P. Cole.

Charles Schalk of Tannersville has been the guest of his parents for a few days.

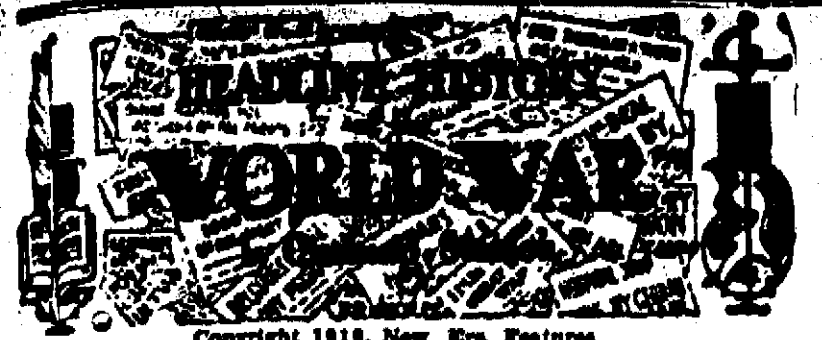

The P. N. S. have quitted a bed spread for Mrs. George Lowther of Kingston during the last week.

WILLOW.

Willow, March 25.—After some delay of services for a considerable time owing to storm and had made, there will be service again in the M. E. Church next Sunday, March 28, at 2 o'clock sharp. An this probably will be the last service in the present comfortable year. It is earnestly hoped that a good congregation will be present.

Mr. Holtz and wife have left for New York city.

WHAT HAPPENED MARCH 25, 1919.

Russians win great battle in the Carpathians; force back Austrians at Vysok Pass; capture 100 officers and 5,000 men as defenders retreat along whole front. Italian press admits that nation is near war; government organ says time for action is at hand.

Fifty lives lost in sinking of Channel Steamer "Sussex." French ministry reports vessel was sunk by U-boat; 25 Americans on board, one reported dead eleven missing. Villa cruades pursuers; bandit not surrounded. President Wilson denounces alarmist talk; says General Pershing needs no greater force.

O'REILLY'S TALK AT ROTARY LUNCH

Members of the Rotary Club were entertained at their luncheon Wednesday by a most interesting and entertaining vocational talk by William O'Reilly, the Broadway newswriter, who, as he said in opening, is "a pretty old bird at the business," having begun as a newspaper carrier in 1884, 36 years ago. In those days New York papers came on the Hudson River Railroad and were never folded. The newsmen had to fold the papers and the boy not expert enough to get his share done while coming across on the ferry was in for stern reproof. Customers were few and on Mr. O'Reilly's route, which was from the ferry to the Wallkill Valley crossing, he left no papers between Chestnut street and Foxhall avenue and none between the last named place and the Wallkill Valley crossing. Now Mr. O'Reilly employs 22 carriers daily and 23 on Sunday. He sells 1,400 New York papers daily and 2,400 on Sunday. His carriers cover Kingston and suburban country and the past winter has been the hardest in 25 years to cover the routes. One route had to be abandoned for five weeks and two others could be only partly covered.

In the old days unsold papers were returned to the publishers, but now no returns are accepted and every paper ordered by the dealer must be paid for. This makes it necessary to gauge the demand very closely in order that it may be met and yet no surplus remain. This is difficult on account of the varying demand from travelers and transient customers. It is for this reason that transient customers are asked a higher price than is charged regular customers, the transients being the cause of all losses from unsold papers. As to dealing with newsmen, "I try to keep the boys in good humor," Mr. O'Reilly said. "For I was a carrier boy and I know how a boy feels. I try to get at the heart of the boy and make him understand that he is not only working for money but that he is rendering a service he has a right to feel proud of." Several former newsmen have made a distinct success in life.

It was in his description of his work as a distributing agent or wholesaler that the speaker told of the features of the business about which least is known by outsiders. The leading publishers now have distributing agencies in every city to whom magazines are shipped by freight, to be distributed to other dealers by mail or messenger. This plan was adopted for the mutual advantage of dealer and publisher, to avoid paying tribute to the great news agencies that formerly monopolized the business. Recently the Saturday Evening Post was a week or more late because the freight shipment was caught in the congestion and delayed. Magazines are shipped about a month before the publication date and must be held by the distributing agents until the proper day for distribution. In the case of the delayed Post, the issue for the next week was received some time before the one that was delayed, but could not be sold or exposed for sale until the release date arrived.

Speaking of his hobby, picture post cards, Mr. O'Reilly said he had cards of nearly every point of interest in four countries. These are—were before the war—made in Germany and are lithographed. They are ordered a year ahead and one reason for variation in price is that of many places only a small edition of cards can be sold, which makes the cost per card higher.

SPENCER'S BUSINESS SCHOOL NOTES.

The following is another list of successful Spencer's graduates who have recently acquired good business positions:

Miss Rebecca Ross, a student in the combined course, has been located in a permanent position as bookkeeper and billing clerk with the North River Coal Company, Thomas street, this city.

Miss Rose M. Dyer, an honor graduate of the shorthand department, has secured a position as stenographer and typist with Benjamin Ross, lawyer, Saugerties, N. Y.

Miss Birdetta E. Kirk, of the stenographic department, has obtained a desirable position as stenographer, assistant bookkeeper and office helper with the Kingston Candy Company, 62 Broadway, this city.

Miss Kirk recently passed the stenographic exam. examination for stenographers, New York city, with a very commendable grade.

Father Isidore Cortesi

Father Isidore Cortesi, of Binetola, N. J., recently returned after many months of war work in Italy. Father Cortesi, before sailing for this country, was decorated by the Pope for his distinguished service with the Italian armies.

OUR DAILY PATTERNS.

3062—For this pretty cap and such one could choose china silk or crepe, lawn, dimity, or dotted Swiss, or crepe de chine. The cap could be of net or lace. Lace, embroidery or stitching will form a suitable finish.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires 2 1/2 yards for the cap and 2 1/2 yards for the sack, of 32 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or one cent or ten cent stamps by The Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state size wanted.

"An all-around good shot—that's us" —Chesterfield

WHAT we're aiming at, is that it takes both skill and precision to blend tobaccos the Chesterfield way.

Blending, by Chesterfield's method, brings out a new richness of flavor and mellowness of taste that other and less skillful blending methods fail to "discover."

Chesterfields sure do "satisfy"—and not in flavor alone, but in value, in quality, also in their extra wrapping* of moisture-proof, glassine paper that keeps the cigarettes in every package firm and fresh.

Today, ask your dealer for these "satisfy-smokes."

CATHOLIC DRIVE ORGANIZATION

Organization for the enrollment of the laity in the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York at the call of Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes is rapidly nearing completion. District chairmen have been named for the several geographical divisions of the Archdiocese, and the work of appointing chairmen and captains of workers teams in all the parishes is going on rapidly.

The following is the manner in which the counties outside of New York city have been grouped, with their chairmen:

Westchester County, Hudson River Division, 26 parishes—Rev. Henry A. Curtin, Immaculate Conception, Yonkers, chairman; Rev. William A. Cashin, Ossining, New York, assistant.

Westchester County, Sound Division, 20 parishes—Rev. Joseph P. Donohue, Most Holy Trinity, Mamaroneck, chairman; Rev. Michael J. Larkin, St. Gabriel's, New Rochelle, assistant.

Westchester County, Harlem River Division, 11 parishes—Rev. Thomas P. Phelan, St. Lawrence O'Toole, Brewster, chairman; Rev. Martin A. Scanlon, St. Mary of the Assumption, Katonah, assistant.

Northeast Hudson River Division, Dutchess and Putnam Counties, 20 parishes—Rev. John J. O'Brien, St. Mary's, Poughkeepsie, chairman; Rev. Joseph Cherry, Sacred Heart, Barrytown, and Rev. Joseph Bergen, Our Lady of Loretto, Cold Spring, assistants.

Sullivan, Orange and Rockland Counties, 36 parishes—Rev. James Henry McGinnis, St. John's, Goshen, chairman; Rev. William P. Donohue, Rev. John J. Fullmar, St. Peter's, Monticello, and Rev. Stephen Connolly, St. Patrick's, Newburgh, assistants.

Ulster County, 10 parishes—Rev. John J. Hickey, St. Mary's, Kingston, chairman; Rev. James Hanley, St. Mary's, Marlborough, New York, assistant.

Why Swat the Fly Now.

No matter how long the winter lasts, the chrysalis of the fly is safe. When the warm spring weather comes the fly inside the chrysalis goes on growing again. At the right moment it bursts open its horny case and comes out like a chicken from its shell. All that it has to do is to dry its wings; then it can fly away full grown.

Flies reach their full size before coming out of their shell-like covering, says a writer in an exchange. When you see small flies and big flies together you must think that the little ones are young and the big ones old. They are different sorts of flies, but full grown. They reach full size before they are released from the cradle in which they have passed the winter. It is because most of the old ones are dead, and the young ones still in their eggs, that we seldom see flies in winter.

The common house fly when it wakes in the spring lays over a hundred eggs, which hatch in a day or two as maggots. These grow rapidly, become pupae and within two weeks from the eggs are full-grown flies, ready to lay eggs themselves. You can see how many billion flies there would be if none were destroyed and all the eggs hatched and grew into flies. The house fly usually lays its eggs in filth and if we keep our premises clean we shall have fewer flies.

Josephine's Horoscope.

Is there such a thing as seeing into the future? Yes. Here is one of the many testimonials to the solemn gift: When the Empress Josephine of France was a girl in Martinique, an old colored woman, named Euphonia, "told her fortune." "You will marry a fair man. Your star promises two alliances. With your first husband you will have a tangle lawsuit. Your second husband, a dark man of slender means, will fill the world with his fame and glory. You will be greater than queen." You will die unhappy. The entire prediction came true.

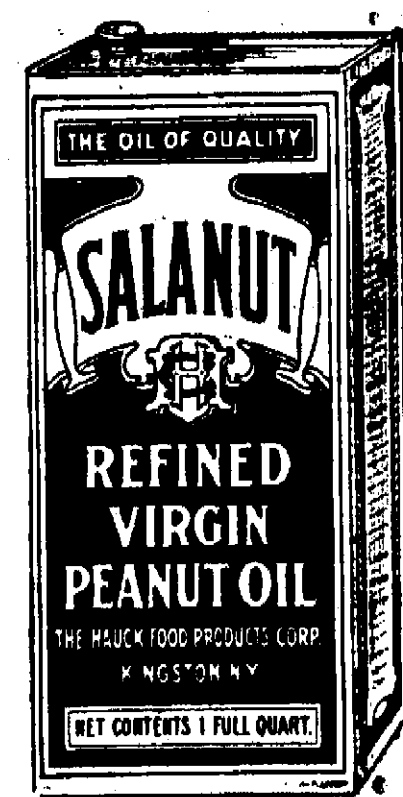

Home Candy Making

Not many years ago everybody made candy at home.

Now the fashion of home candy making has returned. All kinds are made at home, from the molasses variety that is pulled to fudge or creams. Richness in candy demands some fat. Butter is too expensive, lard compounds leave their mixed flavors and odors.

The best candy shortening is SALANUT---refined virgin peanut oil,---the same oil you use in frying, baking or salad making.

Peanut Fudge

- 4 teaspoons SALANUT
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup chipped peanuts
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 1/2 tablespoon salt
- 1 cup milk

Boil the milk, sugar, SALANUT and salt until it will form a hard ball when tested in cold water. Remove from fire, stir in the flavoring and nuts and beat until creamy. Pour into a pan oiled with SALANUT and as it cools mark it in squares.

Admiral Horthy, Regent of Hungary, riding through the flower-strewn streets of Budapest on the occasion of his first visit to the Hungarian Parliament. Admiral Horthy is apparently immensely popular, for the streets of the Capital were thronged with cheering thousands who literally covered the Admiral's path with flowers.

RETRIBUTION IN MEXICO

Lee Says Fear Of Punishment Alone
Will Cause Mexicans To Cease Ill Treatment of Americans—Denounces Carranza.

The address given by T. Fitz Lee at the high school Wednesday evening was an expression of the Mexican situation from both the Mexican and the American viewpoint. Swift retribution for outrages to Americans in Mexico was held out as the only remedy applicable to a people who understand no rule but that of force.

Mr. Lee, who lectured under the auspices of The Association For The Protection of American Rights In Mexico, was brought to Kingston by the forum committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and was introduced to a fair sized but most attentive and deeply interested audience, by Mr. R. V. Rensburg of the Chamber of Commerce.

Following from his opening remarks, Mr. Lee found Kingston a hospitable place from the time he struck the Hotel Stayviant, for he said he found an unusually smiling cordiality. Perhaps he did not appreciate that his own graciousness of manner called out the cordiality.

His subject was "Behind The Smoke Screen In Mexico," a clever picture of the confusion through which we view, or try to view and understand the Mexican situation. Having lived in Mexico for twenty years, Mr. Lee spoke of matters the other side of the screen, which he described as "A bewilderingly composite thing, made up of ignorance of racial inheritance, character and idealism of impractical theories—of 'watchful waiting'—of the diplomacy of a John Lind—of the Bolshevism of a Lincoln Steffens. Distilled altruism is there—political prescriptions of international quicks, healers trying to fit a cure to a disease they have never diagnosed, for a patient they have never known. Where the smudge of the screen is the thickest, are the words—torrents of words—volumes of words written into books by well-meaning but ill-formed dabblers who have had but the briefest view of Mexico or her people—who ignore or disdain fundamental facts and causes, to dawdle over unripe theories relating to things they have never known and could not understand. These are but a few of the elements which give density to the 'Smoke Screen,' along the Rio Grande—light wonder that the things we see behind it are distorted and unreal."

Calling attention to the fact that we Americans have a way of judging each other individually and other nations as such by our own little yard stick, Mr. Lee by a concise recounting of the history of Mexico from the days of the cruel and religiously fanatical Aztecs and Toltecs, etc., and their conquerors the crafty, tyrannical, fighting Spaniards under Cortez, showed how for three hundred years, the very characteristics mentioned above had been, so to speak cultivated in the Mexican people, until there was but little to hope for from them. They were in no possible way comparable in thought, habit or ideal or knowledge with our American people, yet we tried to judge them as though they were. Our own ignorance of these facts but makes the screen the more dense, but Mr. Lee was emphatically of the belief that if the American people once did actually know the facts it could be left to those same American people to determine our future government policy regarding Mexico in a sound and sensible way. "For the overwhelming power of this government of ours is based upon the premise that 'you can't fool all of the people all of the time.'"

What do the Mexican people know of "government," in any such sense as we know it, when for 200 years they have seen it meaning the power of the few to squeeze out wealth and luxury and living from the governed?

While during its one hundred years of so-called "freedom," Mexico has had less than forty years of peace, "nothing so infinitely degrading to national character—nothing so pitiable has ever been fastened upon a people as the present revolution, headed by the dictator of Mexico today—self-appointed and maintained in office by a system of banditry in his own and by the suffering and moral support of our own government." The speaker said that right now, Carranza is collecting $150,000,000 annually from the very men who built industrial Mexico, while his people have received not one thing from a government which has cut down education, made pest places of the hospitals, destroyed civic buildings and has made even civil law and common justice a sickening joke.

The speaker then went on to show how, being side by side with a neighboring people, saddled with a travesty on government, we are indeed face to face with a serious problem, and asked pertinently, "Other than keeping up a sustained barrage of talk, argument and theory, what are we going to do?"

To quote again from Mr. Lee: "The Mexican problem and the Mexican situation today is largely of our own making. The Mexican people from peon to dictator will react only to firmness of purpose which they can understand. They have been governed four centuries by the fear of what may happen if they violate the despot's law. To them hesitancy is fear. Our patience is translated by them into cowardice. Our forbearance inspires their contempt. Naturally they reason this way because in all their centuries of experience the man who did not strike when he had the advantage was afraid to strike. The man who would not protect himself was a coward. It's about time for us to measure the Mexican character and the Mexican government with a yard stick which fits them."

It's about time for the American people to rise up with something akin to indignation and demand from our government, a policy of firmness and justice toward this bandit administrator of government, until with the fear of God and Uncle Sam in his heart, he will observe the rights of our people; guard the lives of our citizens—respect the sanctity of our women—conserve the property rights of our people and observe the decencies which one civilized people have a right to expect from another. Nothing but the fear of a just punishment promptly administered will enforce consideration from this revolution-mad people, with the astig-matism of racial inheritance blinding them to our real character, intents and purposes. Once let it be known that the violation of American rights in Mexico will be followed by swift retribution and those same rights will thereupon be respected—the American citizen will then know a respect and security for his life and his property that he has not felt for ten years."

Mr. Lee then told two or three stories to show his audience wherein the Mexican problem affected them personally.

The first was that of over 2,700 of our ordinary American citizens in the middle west who some years ago when there was a sane and decent Mexican policy, pooled their interests, went into old Mexico, reclaimed a good sized tract of land and finally planted thousands of acres of sugar cane. Then they built a great sugar factory and employed some 2,000 peons, paying them such a living wage as they had never dreamed of before. They created millions of taxable wealth for Mexico, and up to eight years ago they sent out into the world annually some 11 million pounds of sugar. Then four of their men were murdered, the property was destroyed and the sugar fields were burned. Mr. Lee said he had never met a braver, cleaner lot of men working for an ideal than those pioneer men.

The next story was that of Mr. Dolney, the oil man, who feeling sure there was much more oil in Mexico than had been extracted, got permission from President Diaz to go in search of the same, promising to contribute all the money, skill and experience needed; also promising to do the work subject to the laws of the land and to pay the tax levied. As a result of this enterprise refineries were built—for he found the oil—pipe lines were laid and millions of money were invested. When Carranza came into power, he looked over the wealth possibilities of Mexico with an eye single to his own interests and decided that the richest returns could come from the oil lands, so by treating the constitution of Mexico as a scrap of paper and destroying it, he ordered all American companies to stop drilling, took away their tools and sealed them up. The speaker then went on to show how this action was causing the men before him to pay more and more for their gasoline and would cause them to keep on paying more and more. He asked what was to become of our industrial development and of our infant but growing merchant marine without oil, for last year we used 60 million barrels of Mexican fuel oil? We also used 300 million gallons of gasoline from Mexico. With this supply cut off, Mr. Lee wanted to know where we were to get our fuel oil supply.

He said American men and American capital simply could not go again into Mexico unless the principle of protecting American property rights and American lives is again made a living factor fully enforced.

The story that showed the most pitiful human hardship was that of the thousands of Americans of little means who took their families and their savings, in acceptance of the invitation of the Mexican government, and went into Mexico, bought little farms and cultivated and enriched them. Mr. Lee said that of the thousands of such farms no did not now know of one which was still being operated by its American owner. These owners have either been run off or murdered, or to save themselves and family have declared themselves to be either German or British subjects.

After telling the story of Mary Correll so that it struck home as no written account has done, Mr. Lee closed the narrative by saying: "In time the wreck of a woman told her story to the house rules committee—that was all—nothing was done. Only I forgot to mention that during this time Mary Correll's other son was serving his country over seas—making the world safe for democracy! Safe for democracy! An alluring phrase—a fascinating thought. But I want you to know with what earnest, vital meaning I speak when I suggest that the time has come and passed and come again to make the world everywhere safe for American citizens." (Applause.)

The speaker then continued to show how the high cost of living as shown in the price of beef, of leather for shoes and of wool has gone soaring in great part because the great cattle ranches of Mexico are no longer operated. As Mr. Lee said: "Beef and bandits cannot run on the same ranges."

"Coal famine, sugar famine, prohibitive cost of beef, shoes, wool, gasoline, copper and even silver—the question of Mexico, Carranza and our government's policy—these are questions that are discussed at you. They are personal—pertinent, personal. They demand an answer. The shadow of our Mexican policy is standing beside you when you buy your daily beefsteak—when you fill your dinner—when you bought your for a pound of sugar a few weeks ago —when you negotiated for your $20 pair of shoes. In its greater aspects the danger threatens the existence of our merchant marine because 90 per cent of the fuel oil used for this purpose and for industrial purposes on this Atlantic coast comes from American oil wells in Old Mexico."

But Mr. Lee counted that there was another and bitter phase of the whole matter, our deep humiliation and shame that the various damnable outrages that have been perpetrated against American men, American women and American property in Mexico can go unpunished.

The speaker did not think that armed intervention was the answer to the problem, but rather the "Cubanization" of Mexico: the permitting of the Mexican people to assume the first steps of self government under a protection that would save the masses from the unscrupulous despotism of the few. And any good results in unhappy Mexico, must be brought about by some outside force reaching into Mexico and placing the reins of government in the hands of such capable men—and they are to be found—as will wisely guide and represent the mass of the Mexican people, and then standing behind such action with the force necessary to protect the people of the land and the aliens in its borders.

Briefly but vividly the speaker recited the shameful treatment of our flag, the flag that carried so much of victory into the world war, in Mexico, and the insults to our ambassador and consul general.

"But," he said, "You will never know just what I mean until something of yours has been backed up to a mud wall and murdered while those who loved him are made to stand and look at it. You will never quite understand until these things come home to you time after time—hundreds of times. You will never quite comprehend the bitter significance of it until you have seen thousands of your own kind—American citizens, not only robbed of their material things, but robbed of their ideals—their faith, their hopes and their pride in a flag and a land they have been taught to revere."

Mr. Lee closed with the following words:
"Tonight I am appealing to you with all the deep, compelling urgencies which are to put your self on the side of those Americans who believe in and who stand for the protection of the rights of our citizens wherever they may be. It isn't something new, I'm asking—it's a plea for the re-assertion of that fundamental principle and policy for which, until recent years, we have always stood. It's a principle that is bigger than a party platform—greater than the call of class or creed—it's the bedrock of Democracy—it's the base upon which our citizenship rests. This is an appeal to you to bring this policy back in being—make our flag stand for the rights of our citizens—for their safety and protection wherever they may be on earth."

Florida Coast Is Infested With Smugglers.

TALES OF EXPLANTS

Running on Vast Scale Is in Progress—Revenue Officers Have 800 Miles of Coast to Cover—Almost Every One of Thousands of Islands in West Indies Group Is Cache for Liquor—Shipped Out and Smuggled Back

Miami is agog today with tales of smuggling that bring memories of the old days when pirates infested the West Indies a century ago, ran the coast of revenue officers and brought back cargoes into Florida.

In every club, hotel, restaurant and cafe people are discussing thrilling stories of how Capt. Kidd or Skipper was shipped through the net of revenue cutters and landed with a rich cargo. And as these people talk they drink.

They drink cargoes that have been smuggled past the federal authorities. The prohibition amendment didn't stop the sale of liquor in Florida; it merely boosted the price.

It is not difficult to secure a drink of whisky in Florida. It cannot be said that the stuff is sold openly, but a pleasant assurance that you are "all right" and a dollar bill will bring a libation in almost any restaurant.

Sheriff a Wet Sympathizer.

In one county the sheriff is supposed to be in league with the liquor runners. It is said that this sheriff went out with some revenue agents, made an arrest, and left the liquor in charge of a colored man while the smugglers were being arrested. When they returned the colored man and the liquor had disappeared.

"Florida didn't vote to make this nation dry," said one city official when asked about the situation.

So all the smugglers have to face is an ardent staff of government officers. These revenue officers have more than 500 miles of coast to cover and it is said that almost every one of the thousands of islands in the West Indies group is a cache for liquor. From the 100,000 islands on the west coast of Florida to the Andros Islands of Cuba there are little pieces of land that are used as headquarters by the smugglers.

In Columbus' Footsteps.

On Benini cars, in Nassau, in the Bahamas Islands, even on San Salvador, where Columbus first landed, there is whisky. It is purchased from the natives, shipped out, and then smuggled back.

Last week in Nassau seven ships came to port with cargoes of whisky. Loaded whisky from Kentucky and Florida. The cargoes were removed and the whisky disappeared. Any vessel that can travel through the gulf stream is used by the smugglers.

Sometimes the liquor is brought close to the three-mile limit and then anchored to a buoy to be picked up by fishermen later.

Outside Miami there is a series of loops marking the channel. A party of revenue officers went out to change the markers. Deep in the water, attached to the buoy, they discovered a cask of whisky.

In Benini a sporting-clash has been organized. It is called the Benini Rod and Gun club by some, but more often referred to as the "Forty Rod and Gun club." It takes forty minutes to reach Benini from Miami. Small steamers are chartered daily for the trip. It was in Benini that Ponce de Leon "discovered" his fountain of youth. The fountain is still flowing.

Whisky can be purchased in Nassau for 11 shillings a quart. In Miami a quart of the stuff can be purchased for 70¢. The country clubs, the cafes, the hotels, all sell it.

REFUGEE SPOTS FOR ELOPERS

Fleet Prison and Gretna Green Were Highly Desirable Places in the Olden Time.

Gretna Green, whose chief industry was once matrimony, is a village in Scotland less than a mile from the River Sark, which marks the English-Scottish boundary line in that vicinity, near the Solway Firth. The English marriage laws sent eloping couples to Scotland just as the divorce laws of 47 of our states make Reno desirable for would-be divorcees, and therein lies Gretna Green's first claim to fame.

Fleet prison was the figurative "Gretna Green" of England until the passage of the famous Hardwicke act of 1754, which made unauthorized marriages voidable. Gretna Green thereupon becoming the romance spot of the British Isles. All the Scottish law required was that two persons should declare their intention to be married in the presence of witnesses, and the British law then, as now, recognizes marriages as legal as long as they conformed to the laws in the places where they were performed.

During the three decades when Gretna Green flourished, there were more than 7,000 marriages recorded there, nearly 800 of which were performed in 1856, the year before Scotland enacted a law which made a three weeks' residence a requisite to marriage. Marriage by declaration is still legal in Scotland.

BE THANKFUL YOU CAN SMELL

English Woman Writer Went Through Life Keenly Regretting Her Lack of That Sense.

Did it ever occur to you to be grateful for the sense of smell? Probably not, and yet those who have been deprived of it have felt their loss keenly. Harriet Martineau, the famous English writer, lacked the sense of smell and consequently the sense of taste, which depends on smell. Once and only once she tasted in all the intensity of flavor a slice of a leg of mutton. The sense came to her suddenly and she thought and hoped it had come to stay.

"I was going out to a great dinner that night," she said when telling of her one taste, "and I looked forward with great eagerness to the dainties that I knew would be set before me. How I should enjoy practicing my new-found sense of taste!"

But, alas, the sense of taste disappeared as suddenly as it had come, and never returned, and she went through life remembering that taste of roast mutton as one of her keenest joys.

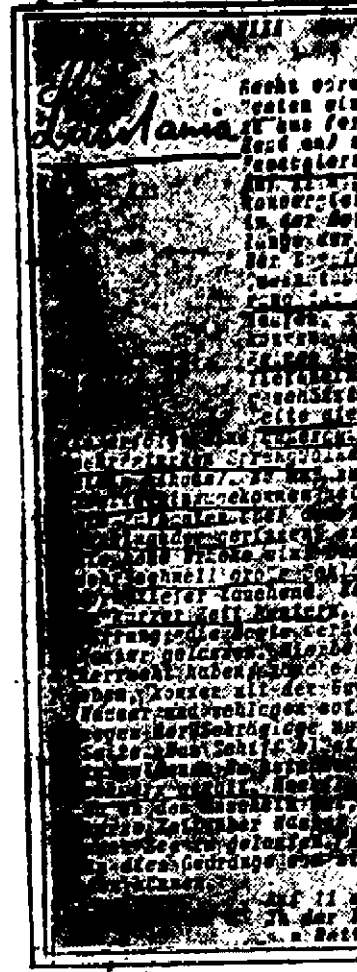

Could See Resemblance.

In a downtown store the other day a woman stood near the cash desk very pardonably and proudly showing off a little baby girl, of whom the exhibitor quite obviously was an aunt. The child's effectiveness consisted mainly of its head-dress and a cluster of rich golden curls. An admiring group soon gathered around, while the woman pointed out the baby's finer points of beauty, concluding with the rather far-fetched statement that "Everybody says she looks just like me!" The woman, busy talking, did not notice that the child had become restive and was tugging with both hands at the ribbons which fastened the dainty cap on her head, and suddenly the knot was untied, and off came the cap. And off came the curls, too, which were fastened to the cap, leaving the baby as bald as the floorwalker who stood grinning nearby. There was a moment of charitable silence, and then someone in the crowd turned away with the remark: "Well, she does look a good deal like the old lady, at that."—Kansas City Star.

Abstract From Lusitania obituary page.

Cover of Schweiger's war diary containing facts of Lusitania sinking.
Kapitänleutnant Schweiger wearing decoration awarded for sinking Lusitania.

The log of the U-20, telling for the first time the official story of the destruction of the Lusitania with the loss of 1,195 lives—written on that historic afternoon of May 7, 1915, by the German submarine commander whose hand directed the fatal shot—has been sent broadcast by the International News Service. These photographic extracts from the historic war diary of Kapitänleutnant Schweiger are copyrighted by the International News Service. On the left is an abstract from the obituary page of the Lusitania. The page is marked and underscored with red and blue crayon. It is this page which proves that only one torpedo was fired and that the second explosion occurred from within the Lusitania itself. In the center is shown Kapitänleutnant Schweiger wearing the decoration, the highest honor within the gift of the German machine which was conferred upon him for his foul deed. Schweiger paid for his crime with his life. He was lost at sea in 1917 after putting out in the U-88. On the right is shown the cover of the war diary to which the historians will turn for their documentary facts concerning the sinking of the Lusitania. Below on the right is Schweiger's signature at the end of the diary.

LIGHTHOUSE NEAR END

Famous Landmark of Atlantic Coast in Danger.

Although Henlopen light, one of the famous landmarks of the Atlantic coast, has been badly undermined by the battering of the heavy seas and storm. It was said by shipping men at Wilmington, Del., to be in no immediate danger after a recent storm.

It was believed the light would again weather the storm in safety. A report that the structure was leaning could not be verified, as the telephone wire there was out of commission. Harry Palmer, chief keeper, and three assistants refused to leave the lighthouse.

For years the water has been creeping up on the light until it is only 150 feet from the base of the structure at low tide. The foundation of sand and loam is being eaten away by each succeeding storm.

Talk of moving it back has been heard from time to time, but it is always declared the cost was prohibitive. The lighthouse was built by the English in 1784.

It Pays to Advertise.

It pays to advertise. That is what Adolph A. Unger, a silk manufacturer of New York thinks. When cracksmen visited his office they found this sign on the safe: "Books only. Don't waste your energy." The visitors followed instructions.

Canine Altruism.

The dog is not only a social animal, but has the rudiments, at least, of altruism. I once saw a dog jump into a river and swim down to another and younger dog, which had been swept along by the current and who was trying in vain to make a landing where the bank was steep and slippery. At every attempt his claws slipped; he was losing his head; he was growing weak. The older dog pushed him downstream to a safe landing, then went on about his business, as if it were a mere detail.—American Magazine.

Primitive Fire Prevention.

In the early days of the fire insurance business each company in London maintained its own fire brigade. In those days a citizen might go out into the street and shout "Fire!" as loudly as he liked, but unless he had paid his insurance premium he would not get his share of a bucket of water to prevent the fire from burning.

Firemen's Work.

In the 18th century, when women marry, they are help partners with their husbands. While the men handle the work, the women attend to the finances, act as cashiers, pay the workers and oversee work of the business. They also have equality with the men in everything except voting.

Power Transmission Machinery

— IS OUR —

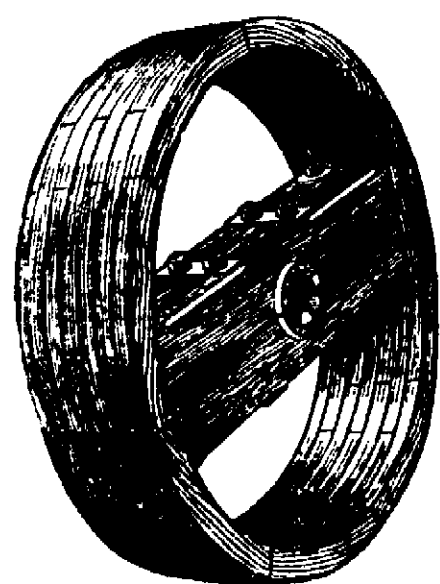

Power Transmission Machinery

It's the transmission machinery that's advertised with double pages in the Saturday Evening Post and the Literary Digest—in full pages in the leading magazines and in the technical publications.

Its makers stand back of it with a binding guarantee and the largest and most completely equipped factories of their kind in the world.

"Built by Dodge" has meant entire installations, weighing millions of pounds and costing thousands of dollars; again that mark of superiority attaches itself to a single pulley, a clutch, a hanger, a bearing, a coupling or a collar; equal quality, equal value applying in either case.

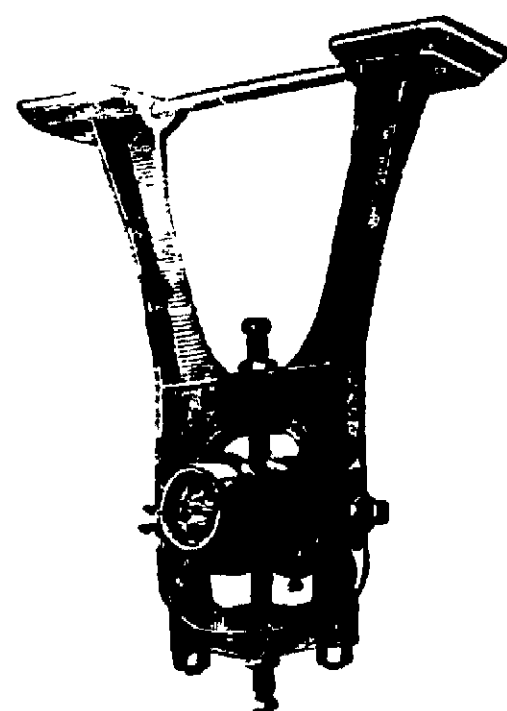

Everything for the mechanical transmission of power is "built by Dodge," each product carrying the basic thought, conservation of energy.

KEYSTONE WOOD SPLIT PULLEYS

Keystone Wood Split Pulleys are strong, durable, correctly proportioned, well made.

Their construction allows for compression sufficient to prevent the annoyance and loss due to slipping of the pulley on the shaft.

KEYSTONE FOUR-POINT HANGERS

The four screws used in adjusting are of equal size. One wrench, two hands and five minutes will realign any hanger that becomes out of adjustment.

What You Want When You Want It

"What you want" is the tried and tested quality—product that offers you the greatest value for your money. You'll find that first of all in Dodge Products.

Each product is designed and built in Dodge Shops by Dodge Workmen with a distinct relation to every other Dodge product.

A transmission installation furnished by us goes together right and stays right through years of faithful service. Such harmonized service is not possible where products of many makers are brought together in one installation.

Our transmission equipment is interchangeable. The utility of any product does not end with the suspension of the job for which it is originally bought. This feature alone may mean the saving to you of hundreds of dollars a year.

"When you want it" means immediate delivery and low cost delivery. We carry the standard sizes of the articles illustrated on this page. You can have delivery by truck the same day your order is received.

In an emergency—when men are idle and production is stopped—the speed laws are the only limit to the promptness with which we will serve you.

Our reputation and profits depend on the goods we sell. In our stock, there is room for the products of only the best and largest manufacturers we stock, etc. Whatever you buy from us, be assured that you're getting value for the money you spend; that the products will make good in service; that delivery will be "When you want it."

"SHORTY"

"Shorty" is the millwright—the man on whom falls the responsibility of keeping the machinery moving.

When you know Dodge-Keystone products as the men who actually handle, erect and repair your machinery do, your production will increase and your power bills will decrease.

Statues of "Shorty" 5' high are ready for distribution to plant executives.

As a desk ornament they are unique and attractive.

CROWN FOR SALE

Emblem of Hungarian Monarchy
Said to Be on Market.

By Far the Oldest of Existing Regalia in Europe, and is Said on Good Authority to Date Back
1,000 Years.

According to a recent dispatch from Budapest, the government has offered to sell for the sum of 100,000 Swiss francs, normally about $19,000, the famous crown of Hungary known as the crown of St. Stephen. It is a strange tale which has picked this, the most ancient and revered crown in all Europe, for a possible object of a commercial transaction, and if the offer is really a bona fide one, there are doubtless a good many collectors of ancient and curious relics, both in the United States and Europe, not to mention many famous museums, who would gladly pay the price asked, and much more, for that matter, for the pleasure of owning this almost priceless historic relic.

To those who know something of the history of this famous crown it seems almost impossible to believe, even if the reported dream of the monarchist group now rampant in Hungary who would put this crown on the job again should not materialize according to schedule, that the people would ever permit this crown to go out of possession of the state, as during the course of centuries a veritable legal and sentimental idolatry, unequalled in any other country, has developed in Hungary for the crown of St. Stephen.

With the sole exception of the so-called Iron crown of Lombardy, this Hungarian crown is by far the oldest of all existing regalia in Europe. Legend traces back its origin to about the year 1000. It is certain that it existed in the first year of the thirteenth century, and a section of it is probably much older than that. According to the Hungarian conception, an uncrowned king was no king at all; his decrees had no legal force and resistance to them was constitutional. And, in fact, during the last 300 years there was only one ruler who defied the ancient Magyar traditions centering around the crown of St. Stephen—Joseph II, the enlightened but arbitrary son of Maria Theresa.

The career of the crown of St. Stephen has been distinguished by more romance than any other crown in Europe.

As the story goes, in the year 1000 Pope Sylvester II finished the god-sized task of converting the fierce Magyar horsemen to Christianity.

The crown, it is said, was not originally intended for Stephen, but was made on the pope's order for the Polish prince Boleslav, and his holiness was just about dispatching it to him by courier, when one night an angel appeared to the pope in a dream and enjoined him to give the crown to Stephen. Awakening, the holy father gave the crown to the Abbot Asztrik with the words:

"Tell the duke of the Hungarians that while I am merely a successor of the apostles, he is a real apostle himself."

Thereupon Asztrik delivered the crown to Stephen, who soon afterward was crowned first king of Hungary at Alba Regia. Ever after the rulers of Hungary bore the title "Apostolic King," just as the epithet "Most Christian" was bestowed by the popes on the kings of France and the attribute "Most Catholic" on the kings of Spain.

After the death of Stephen, the crown was used at the successive coronation of 20 kings of the Aspad dynasty, and altogether it has been employed at the coronation of 50 kings during 600 years, being regarded during this entire period as the source and depository of all power in the realm and the supreme symbol of law and constitution.

It is a broad, flat band of gold, whence springs an arch supporting a cross, and it is, or was, set with 55 sapphires, 50 rubies, 1 emerald and 135 pearls.—Exchange.

Improved Giant Incubator. Holding 10,500 eggs and hatching 3,500 each week, in a space of 84 feet square is the feat performed by an improved incubator with a growing record of success, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. The big hatching machine resembles a retailer's refrigerator and is complete in itself.

Two large oil heaters are installed at the rear and a partitioned cross chamber is lined with hot water pipes, with electric fans at the top. The air is forced down around the pipes and up through the egg chambers, adjusted ventilators at the top keeping evaporation at a minimum. By a special arrangement all the eggs can be turned in five minutes. A model of 2,400 egg capacity is also made in similar form.

Glad of it.

"Aren't the mails dreadfully slow?" "Yes, but that's an advantage sometimes."

"Why, this morning I received the Publisher's card for yesterday's reception."

"So did I. It gave me a really decent excuse for not going."

Overheard.
Mrs. Green (reluctant expression)—"It isn't something awful. The dentist wanted to give me gas, but my husband wouldn't let him. You see, he'd been around himself in France."

Keep An Winter Long.

When someone sleep away the cold days in the winter, says the American Fur Company, it is not an uncommon thing to find a whole family, or maybe several families, curled up together in the folds of some big coat.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

CAMEL'S CARELESSNESS.

"I've said so before and I will say so again," remarked the Dromedary with the single hump, also known in the zoo, or anywhere else for that matter, as the single-humped camel.

"What have you said before?" asked the Bactrian Camel with the two great humps.

"Something about you," said the Dromedary.

"You can't expect me to remember something you may have said before," said the Bactrian Camel. "For I am stupid and I cannot bother to even try to remember things."

"Oh, I suppose you can't," said the Dromedary.

"And anyway," said the Bactrian Camel, "what would be the sense in trying to when you say that you are going to say this same thing again which you have said before?"

"Well, I might as well be saying what I set out to say, though I don't feel so very smart and clever myself."

"You're not very smart anyway," said the Bactrian Camel. "Or, at any rate, you're not a great, great student, but still you might as well say what you set out to say. I don't care whether it is worth hearing or not. That doesn't make any difference to me. That is where a friend like myself is rather a nice sort to have at times."

"Well," said the Dromedary, "I was going to say, and I have said it before, that it does seem a great, great pity that your hair is so splendid in the winter time. You have a handsome, brown, shaggy coat now."

"It is really very good looking and you look all dressed up for the winter."

"I always dress up for the winter," said the Bactrian Camel.

"I know," said the Dromedary. "but it seems so foolish. You shed your nice coat in the summer when all the visitors come to the zoo and folks ride and everyone sees you."

"You have so few visitors now it doesn't matter how you look. Now with me it is different. I never have any long hair at any time. I'm different from you in many ways. I'm not so heavy and big and I can travel faster."

"Of course you can," said the Bactrian Camel. "You haven't as heavy a load to carry in yourself as I have, so naturally you can move faster."

"Why, that's quite bright of you,"

"I Am Careless."

said the Dromedary. "Now, do you suppose you can tell me why you don't look better in the summer when all the guests come to the zoo, and why you look so fine now when it is winter and there are few visitors?"

"I suppose," said the Bactrian Camel slowly, "it is just that I have gotten into such careless habits. I began to dress up in the winter and then got the habit."

"Why, it is as absurd," said the Dromedary. "As though a child should wear her party dress to school and when she went to a party wear her swimming suit or gymnasium clothes."

"Just as absurd," said the Bactrian Camel. "but, as I say, it must have been carelessness. I don't bother to think so much about what I am doing. I don't care about being bright. And I am careless. And my carelessness has become a habit."

"Too bad," said the Dromedary. "It's too bad you're a careless camel, alas a careless camel."

"A careless camel, a careless camel," repeated the Bactrian Camel, as he checked from side to side, twisting his great humps around in a most peculiar fashion.

"Will you ever change?" asked the Dromedary.

"I doubt it," said the Bactrian Camel. "I'm too stupid to really think out the foolishness of the whole thing and I'm too careless to take the trouble to try to form a good habit. I'm careless in every way. I guess a careless camel; that's so, a careless camel."

"Careless camel," said the Dromedary. "careless camel, to dream all day in the lonely winter time."

Killed by Poisoner.

"What is death with a poisoner?" was the question of the reviewer's joy in describing the death of Mrs. Josephine in London. She had been found dead in her room, and the coroner's jury had returned a verdict of death from a boy's snuffbox, but had no idea of the date.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Howard Beardsley, who died suddenly in Catskill on Sunday, was held at her home on West Bridge street, Saugerties, this afternoon. Rev. J. V. Wemple, of the Reformed Church, officiated. Interment was in Mountain View Cemetery.

Mrs. John Erick died at the home of her nephew, Kiriland Plaza, near Mt. Marion, Tuesday evening, in the 90th year of her age. The funeral services will be held at the Plaza home, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. W. H. Dickens, officiating. Interment Mt. Marion cemetery.

The funeral of Peter DeWitt, colored, who died at his home on Cape avenue, Ellenville, on Saturday at the age of 75 years, was held at the M. E. Church Tuesday afternoon. The pastor, Rev. Charles A. Dunn, conducted the service. Mr. DeWitt was born at Hurley, but had been for many years a resident of the town. He was an honored citizen, having served in the Civil War, and was a member of Ward Post, G. A. R. Mr. DeWitt was twice married. He owned the property which he occupied at the time of his death. Interment was made following the funeral in Fairview cemetery.

Mrs. Ruth LaPolt Mason, wife of Horatio S. Mason, died at the home of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mason, at Napanoch, early Saturday morning at the age of 28 years. Mrs. Mason was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew LaPolt and resided at Napanoch at the time of her marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Mason resided on Center street, Ellenville, he being employed at the Ulster Knife Works. Mrs. Mason went over to Napanoch on Thursday to spend a few days, not being in the best of health, and her sudden death was a great shock to her relatives and friends. Surviving are the young husband, her parents and two brothers. The funeral was from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Tuesday afternoon. The service was conducted by the pastor of the M. E. Church, Rev. Mr. Hudson, of which the deceased was a member. Interment in Fairview cemetery.

Ellenville, March 25.—The death of Thomas H. Collins at his home on Center and Park streets early Tuesday morning at the age of 82 years and 5 months, removes from the town one of its oldest citizens and Civil War veterans. Mr. Collins was born at Briggs Street, a son of Peter Collins and Deborah Retch, his wife. Mr. Collins grew to manhood in his home town and united in marriage with Louisa Deputy of Woodbourne. Following the death of his wife he and his three sons went west. Mr. Collins taking up a government claim. For several years he was engaged in farming. After disposing of his farm he returned to Ellenville and was united in marriage with Miss Caroline Hart, who died about three years ago. Mr. Collins continued to reside at the home here. Mr. Collins enlisted in the 10th Regiment, Co. E, and saw much service in the Civil War. He was an active member of Ward Post, G. A. R., of Ellenville, an honored citizen of the town. For many years he was an active member of the Beaver Dam Club and farm at Ulster Heights, enjoying the sport of fishing and bird catching. He was well respected in the town, and his death was a great loss to the community. Surviving are the three sons, Edward of Ellenville, New York, George of University Park, Iowa, and William Collins, a merchant at Birmingham, Ala. One daughter survives, Watson Collins, of Council Bluffs, Iowa. The funeral was held from his late home this afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles A. Dunn, of the M. E. Church. Interment in the family plot in the Fairview cemetery.

HOW TO PREVENT BARK FLAKING OFF LOGS.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
To prevent the bark from flaking off logs in rustic structures, the forestry products laboratory, Madison, Wis., recommends the following different methods of seasoning:

1. Cut timbers late in summer and store on two sides; that is, cut off narrow strips of bark for the entire length. Pile in shade in open pile and allow thorough circulation of air. Allow timbers to season until following spring or summer before using.

2. Proceed as in (1) and in addition coat ends, stripped portions, and knots with coal-tar creosote, using one coat a few days after timber is cut and another just before using the timbers.

3. Proceed as in (1), but do not score bark. When timbers are in place, tack back on with large headed nails, placing one to every square foot of surface. Paint heads of nails to resemble color of bark.

4. Tack or nail the bark without particular attention to time of cutting or other treatment. The nailing method has been used successfully by one Western company which maintains numerous rustic hotels, and also on a large rustic building erected for exposition purposes.

DONE WITH ELECTRIC NEEDLE.

How Expert Tactilestic Creates a Permanent Blush on Women Not Afraid of Pain.

We have always been under the impression that the English women were best with one of the finest complexion in the world, says the Electrical Experimenter, but here comes a cable from London, telling of the popularity of a new fad in the English city—that of electrically inducing a permanent complexion or blush on the face. The report goes on to say that the pallid and sallow faces of London women are being permanently brightened and given a rosy tint by expert tactilestics, whose electric needle applications can be graduated to suit any physiognomy, and further, that the tactilestic report they have never done such a thriving and profitable business among women as now.

How Egypt Is Prospering.

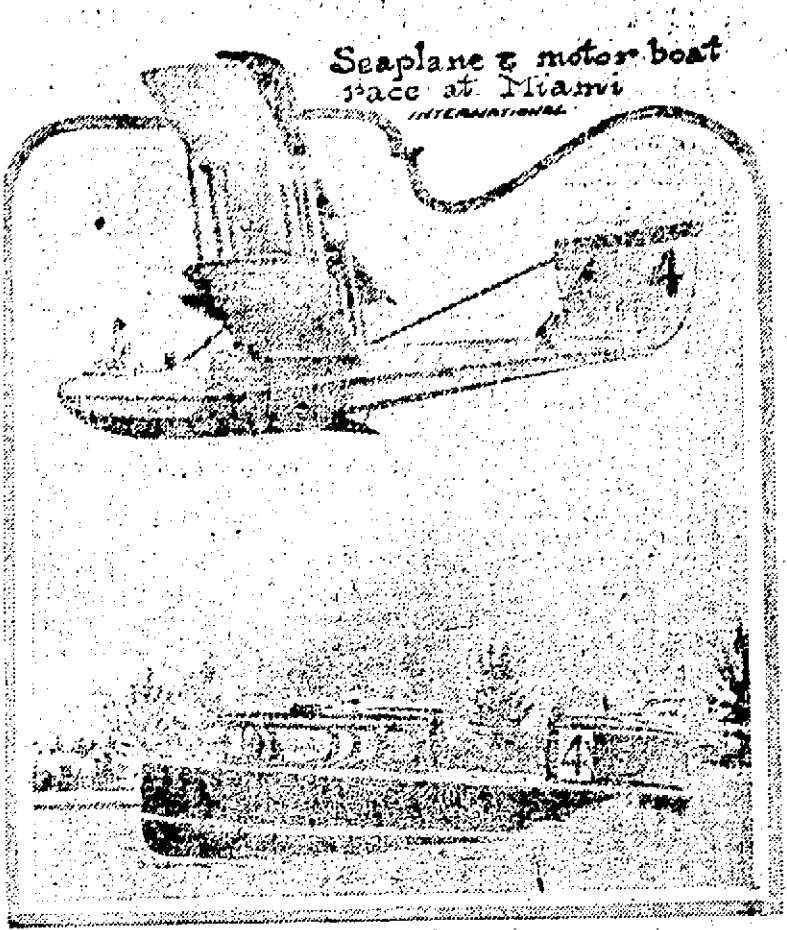

In an interesting paper recently read before the Cairo Geographical society by William Willocks is described how many of the fellahs' wives have profited by the rising tide of agricultural prosperity, to start a little money lending on their own account, and not infrequently to their husbands. In one thriving village where the value of the land held by the fellahs amounted to about $1,000,000, mostly in small holdings, they had cleared off their indebtedness except for $125,000. In this community 80 per cent of the women had money out on loan, and their husbands were found to have borrowed from them at least $200,000, usually at very high rates of interest. The profits at least remain in the family instead of going to the Greek and Coptic money lenders, and certainly strengthen the woman's hold upon her husband, in a country where, according to Mohammedan customs, he can divorce her by a mere word.

How Mike Was Wrecked.

For most people the jokes of Holland have held a romantic suggestion of peril ever since another read them the story of the boy who stopped the train with his arm. Some time ago a like case near Amsterdam was underlined, and by the seizure of the sea, but by heavy rains. The disintegration of the eastern embankment destroyed a railroad line along the top and completely wrecked a loaded passenger train, killing at least 50 and injuring 100 travelers. The cars were rolled to the bottom of the trestle in a tangled mass. Popular Science.

A remarkable photograph of a thrilling race between a seaplane and a speedy motor boat at Miami, Fla. The picture was made just as the seaplane caught and passed the miniature express cruiser, which had previously shattered the world's speed record for boats of that type over 100 feet long.

Although several photographs of President Wilson have been taken since he began to take rides through the Capital, following his long illness, none had been taken except at a distance with poor results. This excellent photograph, the first good one made since the president's health broke during his tour in behalf of the League of Nations and Peace Treaty, was made as the nation's chief was leaving the White House, for a ride through the city. The president stopped the machine and permitted the camera man to get a close view of him. The president has aged considerably since last October.

The Archduke Joseph of Hapsburg, his wife and daughter, photographed on the grounds of their palace near Budapest. The Archduke is being prominently mentioned as ruler of Hungary in the event of a return of the monarchy. The Archduke, who as a field marshal commanded a wing of the Austrian army against the Russian and Rumanians during the war, is still very popular in Hungary. He is much opposed to the Austrian Diet, and since the election of Admiral Horthy as a Regent of Hungary has been himself in politics.

"Raining Cats and Dogs."

Notes and Queries reproduces a letter which appeared in the Daily Express of London, giving an unusual explanation of the origin of the term "raining cats and dogs." It is a corruption of the word "cataclysm," meaning a calamity, says the writer of the letter. (Western Cooper, Cornwall). The Greek kataclysmos, the corruption of the word, from kataclysmos, to fall with a noisy sound. It is raining cats and dogs—it is raining cats and dogs.

Write Your Assemblyman

If you are interested in making the laws you have to obey To the Voters in This Assembly District:

Something is going on here in Albany in which you are vitally interested.

We are trying to make a law to regulate what you shall drink.

We have heard a whole lot from the people who want to forbid you to drink things they say are bad for you.

They come to Albany and tell us we must forbid you drinking anything with more than 1/2 of 1% of alcohol in it because it will intoxicate you.

Do you believe that?

Well, just for instance, buttermilk has more than 1/2 of 1% of alcohol in it.

These folks want us to make a law saying in effect that buttermilk is intoxicating and forbidding you to buy it to drink.

That may sound funny to some folks, but that's just what we are being urged to do in the name of Prohibition.

At least five hundred people who see this advertisement believe and know that 2.75% beer is not intoxicating.

Another five hundred know that a light wine is not intoxicating.

A lot more will feel that it's about time these well organized and noisy minorities who have been writing their personal ideas into our laws for the last few years are made to realize that they don't run this Government after all.

Be Fair to Him and to Yourself

Those are the folks I'm trying to reach. I want your Assemblyman to know that there are other people in his District beside the Anti-Saloon League or the Social uplifters or whatever other kind of well paid agitators you are afflicted with.

He gets letters and telegrams and personal calls from those folks every day of his life. He only hears from you on Election Day. That's not fair to him and it's not fair to you.

Here's your chance to come in and take an interest in making the laws you must live under.

If you are interested in making the laws you have to obey, get behind this Light Wine and Beer Bill and put it across.

You know that neither the beer nor the wine mentioned in the bill are intoxicating beverages.

So the law, as a cold matter of fact, cannot be against the Constitution, for that prohibits the use of intoxicating liquors only.

Write to your assemblyman or write to me. I'll pass him the word.

salutes America.
Georges Carpentier, heavyweight idol of the French boxing world, and his pretty bride stepped aboard the French liner La Saule upon their arrival in New York. The French champion was met by an enthusiastic crowd of Americans, and with his young bride was escorted to No.
10 York city, where he will spend a few days preliminary to making a triumphal tour of the country. Carpentier believes that he can beat Denver in six rounds and is anxious for the bout to take place as soon as possible. Despite his remarkable record in the ring, Carpentier does not think the part of a heavyweight champion. He looked more like a college football player in fact, than a contender for the world's title.

HUDSON BEAT
K. H. S. TEAMS

Wednesday afternoon the Kingston High School Varsity basketball teams journeyed to Hudson, where they played the high school teams of that place.

The girls played the first game, which ended with a score of 7-5 in favor of Hudson. However, there was a misunderstanding near the end of the game and both sides claim victory. The referee blew the whistle during a scrimmage and the Kingston girls stopped playing, but one of the Hudson girls threw in a field basket which the referee counted. Thinking they had made a mistake and not heard the whistle the Kingstonians went on with the game. When the half was over they brought up the question, but the referee could not tell whether he blew the whistle before the girl shot the basket or not. An extra three minute period was played and Hudson scored a foul. This left the score 7-5 and thus the game ended.

The game was fast and rough throughout. Kingston had excellent pass work and at some times it completely bewildered the Hudson team. Misses Carroll and DuFlon, in the forward positions, were right on the job all the time. Miss Simpson at center was a star and held her opponent down in good shape. Misses Miller and Van Williams as guards held the opposing forwards well. Miss Van Williams played a star game.

There was only one accident during the game. This was when Miss Frick, of the Hudson team, was hurt by falling father hard on the court. Misses J. DeProse and Haulenbeck were the stars for Hudson during the first half, while Miss Van De Carr shone during the second period. The Hudson court is smaller than the local court and the girls are parallel to the baskets and opposite to the positions of the girls in the local school. However, the local players got on to the knack of playing on the court and it was not so very hard for them.

Jew forward combination worked out to perfection.

McAndrew did most of the scoring for the local quietest dropping in 11 points while Goldberg scored four points.

Meeker played a fine game at center and was on the job throughout the full time.

Captain Thompson and Bishop deserve medals for the wonderful guarding game that they played. Bishop kept an eagle eye on his man and held him from doing much dangerous work. Thompson played the best game that any of the players on the floor played.

Malone and Hughes were the point-guards for Hudson.

METTACHONTS

Mettachonts, March 24.—The school entertainment given last Thursday evening at the school house, proved a very decided success in spite of the bad roads, which prevented many from out of town attending. The free entertainment given by the school children was very much enjoyed. It consisted of amusing songs, recitations, skits and monologues and the children all did real well in their various parts. After the closing song, which was "Little Brown Jug," the audience remained seated while guesses were taken on a large cake baked by Mrs. Stanley Kelder and which contained some unknown object. The price of a guess was five cents. Arthur Krom was the lucky one to secure the cake as his guess was a walnut, which proved correct. Then there was a fishing pond which proved a great amusement, after which came ice cream and cake, which was thoroughly enjoyed by old and young. The sum of $26.65 was taken in and $24.11 was the net proceeds. A good crowd was in attendance composed mostly from the home town, a few being present from Whitfield, Lehigh and Accord.

Mrs. Jesse Osterhoudt does not improve very rapidly from the attack of inflammatory rheumatism. Frank Miller was in Kerhonkson on Monday.

Virgil Wood and John Vandermark with sleighs and teams moved Floyd Dupuy and family of Accord to their new home in the vicinity of Kingston, last Wednesday.

Lloyd Snow of East Kingston, was a caller in town on Monday, looking for a man and family who would move on the farm he is employed on.

Mrs. Angie Hornbeck of Kingston, is spending some time at her home in this place.

Jerome Enderly and Elton Dupuy of Whitfield were in town on Tuesday morning.

Oliver B. Hendrickson had the luck to secure two fine junks the other week.

Tracy Baker who started on Sunday afternoon to meet a friend on the Sunday afternoon train, because of the water holes in the road which ran back of E. Osterhoudt's, he was forced to leave his rig, rig and walking to Jesse Osterhoudt's secured a horse and sleigh from there to meet the train.

Alfred B. Bodecky upset his sleigh and milk can one day, recently near the state road. Luckily Mr. Bodecky was unhurt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Miller were out enjoying a sleigh ride one day the past week.

Miss Doris Baker who has employment at Dr. Ford's, near Kerhonkson visited her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Baker, over Sunday. Miss Baker has recently returned from a visit to her brother, Ernest Baker, who is very ill with typhoid fever in a Philadelphia hospital. When Miss Baker left, he was slowly improving, but it will be weeks before he can sit up. His friends in this place which is his home town are much concerned about his condition and hope he will recover.

Miss Kathryn Hotelling spent Sunday with friends at Lehigh, where she taught school last year.

Miss Lulu Mae Osterhoudt of Dr. Ford's at Kerhonkson was a week end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Osterhoudt.

A crowd of about forty, young and married gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Baker last Thursday evening. The evening passed quickly and merrily, dancing being enjoyed by some. Delicious refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bell and son, Clifford of Kerhonkson Heights, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Bell and family. Mr. Bell went after them on Saturday and returned them back home on Sunday afternoon.

Jesse Osterhoudt was in Kingston, one day last week.

Oliver B. Hendrickson, John Vandermark and Ed Rider, spent a very pleasant Saturday evening with Leroy Kelder. Card playing was indulged in and refreshments of apples and pop corn enjoyed.

Mr. Tate and wife returned from New York city last week to their farm in this place. Mr. Tate has been in a hospital in New York city most of the winter.

Mrs. Jesse Osterhoudt has returned home after a pleasant winter spent at the home of her daughter and family, Mrs. John J. Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson spent Sunday with Mrs. Rachel Anderson and Mrs. Martha Baker.

Senator Walker's bill restoring legalized gaming in New York state has passed by the Senate after less than an hour's debate, by a vote of 20 to 19 Wednesday. The bill today went to the assembly, where Assemblyman Wood will sponsor it, and where it will be introduced to meet the members of the lower members of the assembly. Under the amendment the bill will not be permitted to participate in betting or sporting matches. Another amendment, prohibiting promoters or holders of property of violating the rules prescribed by the gaming commission, from obtaining a license, The bill as passed by the Senate provides for fifteen round bets subject to rules prescribed by a commission to be named by the governor.
